

Lead the Research and Analysis Efforts at USAID/Liberia

Project Title	Lead the Research and Analysis Efforts at USAID/Liberia
Project Summary	Be part of a team that leads USAID/Liberia's in-house efforts to conduct research and analysis on a wide range of international development topics and prepare reports, presentations, infographics, and other written materials for the Mission leadership.
Country	Liberia

Project Description

USAID/Liberia is about to launch a new 5-year strategy that would support Liberians' efforts to continue to consolidate its democratic gains and rebuild its war-torn and Ebola-affected economy. Since the end of the Liberian Civil War in 2003, the country has held three national elections generally perceived as free and fair. It has also taken on the difficult task of rebuilding its economy, and strengthening its educational and health care delivery systems. The 2014-2015 Ebola Virus Disease outbreak drained the Government of vitally needed resources, slowed economic growth, and delayed key development projects. The worldwide response led by the United States helped bring the worst of the outbreak under control. Our work helps build confidence in public governance, brings reforms to key institutions and fosters measurable improvements in the lives of average Liberians.

You will conduct desk research using appropriate resources (e.g. academic papers, indices, local and international news stories, blogs, social media, virtual/phone interviews when appropriate) on a wide range of topics to create matrices, databases, reports, infographics, briefing memos, and/or presentations to help the Mission leadership make project and strategy decisions.
